

Who are you when you have a stable foundation?
Do you feel safer?
If you feel safer, can you break apart?
Can you question everything?

The knowledge of who you are will help with questioning everything.

Furrow.

And get ready to venture. To question everything. To poke at holes.

Strengthen your foundations. Build your den. Expand your base.

How to prepare for this transition Knight of Pentacles told into eighths - cut along here - fold into booklet

a little numerology: look, idk why but you add the numbers together & you look at the tarot card it corresponds with & somehow it all makes sense, ok? take it with a grain of salt. maybe use it as a way to examine yourself and your own beliefs.

2021 // V. Hierophant
(2 + 0 + 2 + 1 = 5)

Self-parenting. Learning what you need to do to take care of yourself. You are the mountain and all the flora and fauna living within it. You are the mountain and and all the flora and fauna living within it. You are the mountain and and all the flora and fauna living within it. You are the mountain and and all the flora and fauna living within it.

How did you learn to take care of yourself?
What did you learn you cannot stand anymore?
What is actually true?
What are your preconceptions, assumptions, and societal expectations?
How do you separate those from the truth? And do you even want to?

2020

thank you for reading and for being you.

tarot reading and journal prompts for the 2020-2021 transition

To my friends, and especially to parents, educators, and organizers:

2020 was one long, hard year. This reading is for those who'd like to reflect on themselves and their place within the collective, whatever that means to you, as one year passes into next.

I suggest journaling, talking out loud, or pulling your own Tarot cards, as you read along, or you know, whatever if you want.

xoxo, June
